Summary of committee actions since previous plenary

1. The committee met twice via Zoom since the last plenary.
2. The committee is continuing to work on the feasibility of “ethics advisory boards” on each campus. For the Cortland pilot study, CGL Maggie DaVita and Ethics Committee Chair Andrew Fitz-Gibbon, met with the senate steering committee regarding a strategy for implementation. They have met to date three times with senior administrators including the provost, head of human resources, and the deans of the college’s three schools. Cortland faculty senate and administration are all committed to the pilot program. At Cortland an agreed upon name is now “Mediation and Reconciliation Service”—faculty led for faculty. Bill Robins is working simultaneously with people at Empire State. Timeline: spring 2020 Cortland will accept applications to become faculty mediators, provide training, and begin the two-year pilot study beginning fall 2020.
3. The ethics committee continues its work on a white paper regarding ethical issues of Open Educational Resources. Timeline: the paper will be ready for the spring plenary.

Outcomes/queries for UFS Senators to share with their campus

We would be happy to continue to receive any comments on ethics advisory boards, and ethical issues relating to Open Educational Resources.
